This is a free software utility designed to help you define macro commands that can be invoked automatically when you need them to. Keymacro will store your commands in a simple database. When it detects the keyboard, it will automatically send the appropriate macro to the system. This allows you to add a special sequence of keystrokes to trigger the execution of various commands. Just register the desired commands and you will have a library of macro commands that will be very handy for your work. The registration and management is fairly easy and intuitive. The built-in user interface allows you to view the commands currently registered, as well as add, delete and update them. You can also save the commands with a new name and save it to your temporary directory. Features: Manage, register, delete and update macro commands. You can add your own commands to the library. An intuitive user interface. Save the registered commands in a file. General Information: Keymacro allows you to register many useful commands that you can invoke at any time. It is like a tool that will make you a superhuman. You will now have the power to perform simple tasks with just a few keystrokes. KEYMACRO was developed by a group of passionate programmers. The resulting software is high-quality, user-friendly and packed with plenty of useful features. The registration process is quite simple, and you can start using the software right away.

Furthermore, you will be able to use the software for as long as you have an Internet connection, without any subscription. As we have mentioned earlier, this tool allows you to create and manage your own macro commands. It is essential that you first register the commands you want, and only then save them to the database. To do so, open the Main menu and click on the “Create Commands” button. It will open a new screen in which you can add the desired commands. The next screen presents you with an empty menu that you can use in order to define the parameters of the command. You can also select a name for it. If you are done, click the “Create Command” button. Now you will be presented with a new screen that shows all the commands in the database. Each command contains the following information: Short
